

WE ASKED MEMBERS OF WOMEN AT LECHASE

*If you could go back in time,
what would you do differently to prepare for your career?*

.....

Kailly Mintel

Project Executive / Rochester

.....

"I would focus more on soft skills such as leadership, negotiation tactics and relationship building. These have proven to be some of my most useful tools which I greatly undervalued early in my career."

Cheyenne Smith

Project Administrator / Southeast

.....

"I would have started sooner. When I was younger and headed to college, I didn't think I could fit into the construction industry. As a woman, it seemed like a man's world that wouldn't have a place for me, so I didn't pursue it. If I could go back in time and talk to my younger self, I would tell her to take the chance and give the construction management program at school a chance."

Melissa Corey

Senior Marketing Specialist / Southeast

.....

"I learned much of what I know through on-the-job training by amazing, more seasoned co-workers, webinars, learning labs, etc. I wouldn't change a thing."

Jackie McClure

Assistant Project Manager | New Jersey

"I would have gotten more experience out in the field. Participated in industry professional organizations."

Lynette Cox

Project Engineer | Southeast

.....

"I would have been more intentional about exploring careers during high school and college. Exposure is key and I had no idea of the opportunities available to me outside of law, medicine and business."

Bianca Arias

Assistant Project Manager | New York Capital Region

.....

"Build better relationships with knowledgeable people in the industry."

CELEBRATING WOMEN IN CONSTRUCTION WEEK 2023

Thank you to all the women at LeChase for their contributions to our industry.
